GOVERNOR AMES'S ADDRESS TO THE NEW COMMANDER.

Mr. Commander, — As you were so ready to volunteer for the service of your country in the hour of her greatest need, so may you be eager to maintain and promote the glory of this venerable body. I am sure that you will bear the insignia, with which you will be invested by the Adjutant-General, in such manner that when you lay them down a year hence you will do so with pride and honor. [Applause.]

COL. WALKER'S REMARKS UPON RECEIVING HIS COMMISSION.

I accept these emblems of office from your Excellency, conscious that they come to me laden with a most honorable record of two centuries and a half. The history of this ancient corps, commencing almost at the hour when the Puritan first trod the spot whereon we stand, bears upon its rolls the names of men foremost among men of their days, as well in colonial times as under the white banner of the Commonwealth. On the battle-field and in civic life they made their own names illustrious and did yeoman service in building up our State, sustaining her at all times with unfaltering hearts and hands, and by their devotion increasing her material prosperity and her glory.

To every man occupying the position of Commander of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company its record should be a continuing admonition to perform the duties of the office, to bear its responsibilities, and to wear its honors creditably to himself, to his comrades who gave it to him, and to the State, which, by its chief magistrate, indorses the gift; and an inspiration to increasing earnest effort to insure that the story of his year in power may stand worthily beside those preceding, and offer an example to be emulated by those succeeding.

I shall hope and strive so to act, that when I yield to my successor the office I this day assume, I may have so carried it as to deserve the commendation of "well done" from those who have honored me with it, and that these insignia of command may pass from my hands to his without spot or blemish upon them for which I can be held responsible.

I thank your Excellency for your kindly allusions to myself. Such a recognition of honorable public service in the past is the highest of incentives to a public service more honorable, if possible, in the future. [Applause.]

Hon Robert C. Winthrop

Dear Sir Permit me to thank you for your advice so kindly given to me through Col. Wyman as to matters connected with my going to England as Commander of the "Ancients"

Uncertain what to do in response to letters received and knowing that no man better than yourself could advise a course of action consistent with perfect courtesy to the English Company and with the dignity of American citizenship we sought your advice.

I hope that when I return you, our Company and all our citizens may be able to say that the American character has received no detriment at my hands.

Again thanking you I am very Respectfully
Your Obt Servant

DESCRIPTION OF THE PRESENTATION TICKET

FOR

THE BALL AT GUILDHALL, JUNE 28TH, 1887.

The child-figures at each end of the frieze are intended to suggest the Colonies, with the emblems of their industrial prosperity and enterprise hinted at in the pick, the rifle, the spade, and the shepherd's crook; conveying the truth that all wealth finally depends on labour and its continual activity and energy. The English oak fills the background.

In the panels below stand as Guards, on the one hand a Knight with the City arms, to suggest the power and ancient foundation of the Corporation, and on the other a Beefeater bearing the Royal arms, to show the connection of the City with the State and its historic dignity, and to mark the Royal occasion which the Card commemorates.

REVIEW OF VOLUNTEERS

OF THE HOME DISTRICT.

GENERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

Her Majesty the Queen, having signified her pleasure to witness a march-pass of the Home District Volunteers at Buckingham Palace at 4.30 on Saturday, July 2nd, the corps taking part will assemble on Constitution-hill. the Green Park, the Mall, and Horse Guards' Parade, in accordance with instructions already notified to the several brigadiers, and the officers commanding the Honourable Artillery Company and the Royal Naval Artillery Volunteers. The troops will be played past by the massed bands of the Brigade of Guards and the Band of the Royal Artillery. No wagons or carts will accompany any corps. Machine guns, dragged by men, will go by in the rear of the corps to which they belong. No companies to exceed forty files or be less than thirty-eight. All infantry to march past in column, with shouldered arms. Volunteer bands to march past at the head of their respective corps, but not to play until they reach Parliament-street or Wilton-crescent. After passing her Majesty, corps will, on reaching a point marked by a staff officer form "fours-right," by successive companies, and double, proceeding by alternate corps down Birdcage-walk and up Buckingham Palace-road. Those proceeding by Birdcage-walk will march by Great George-street, Bridge-street, and Thames Embankment, to Blackfriars Bridge. Those proceeding by Buckingham Palace-road to march by Lower Grosvenor-place, Grosvenor-place, Grosvenor-crescent, Belgrave-square, Pont-street, Ovington-square, Brompton-road, Exhibition-road, to Hyde Park. On reaching Blackfriars Bridge or Hyde Park, the corps will proceed to their private parades; but if corps desire to leave the route laid down before arriving at the above places they may do so, on the understanding that there is to be no check to the troops in their rear. Brigadiers will issue full instructions to the corps in in their respective brigades as to the hour at which and the route by which they arrive at the appointed place of parade, and will arrange the order in which the corps are to march past, and the route by which they are to proceed after passing her Majesty. They will also notify to corps the time at which their markers should be on the ground.

The only stands to be used on the occasion shall be one for her Majesty, which will be placed just outside the centre gate of the Palace, and one for the Royal Household, behind the railings. The only enclosure of any kind will be for the representatives of the Press. In consequence of the limited space, it has been found impossible to admit the public to the Park, who, however, will witness the defile of the troops in Buckingham Palace-road to Hyde Park-corner and from Birdcage-walk to the Embankment.

FORMATION OF BRIGADES & MARCH PAST.

The whole of the troops will be formed into Six Brigades, with the exception of the Honourable Artillery Company and the Royal Naval Artillery Volunteers, who will head the column in the march-past. These corps will enter the Mall by Marlborough House, and be formed in quarter column facing the Palace, between the Green Park and the eastern end of St. James's Palace, by a quarter-past three.

Third Brigade, numbering 4,454, commanded by Colonel Tucker, C.B., of the 5th and 57th Regimental Districts, will be made up of the 1st and 2nd Volunteer Battalions of the Royal Fusiliers (Colonel Gerard Clark and Colonel Routledge), the 3rd Middlesex Rifles (Colonel Church), 8th Middlesex (Colonel G. B. Clarke), 11th Middlesex (Colonel Sir William Charley) 17th Middlesex (Colonel W. J. Brown), and the Public Schools Battalion, composed of the Eton College, Harrow School, Oxford Military College, Charterhouse School, and Dulwich College corps. The Mounted Infantry of the 3rd Middlesex will follow that battalion. All the corps will enter by the Duke of York's steps, and form between the steps and the west end of Marlborough House.

Fourth Brigade, numbering 4,918, under Colonel Wigram, of the Coldstream Guards, Captain the Hon. H. Amherst and Lieutenant P. A. Lovell, of the same regiment, being brigade major and aide-de-camp. The corps composing the brigade will be the Victoria Rifles (Colonel Bircham), the 4th Middlesex Rifles (Colonel Somers Lewis), the St. George's (Colonel Stanley Bird), the London Irish (Colonel Ward), the 18th Middlesex (Colonel Gordon Ives), the 19th Middlesex (Colonel Smith Richards), the 21st Middlesex (Colonel Morris), and the Central London Rangers (Colonel Alt). The corps are to enter St. James's Park by the Horse Guards-gate, and form in quarter-column near the Duke of York's steps at a quarter to four.

Fifth Brigade, numbering 4,346, commanded by Colonel the Hon. W. Home, of the Grenadiers, Colonel Hatton and Lieutenant J. St. Aubyn, also of the Grenadiers, acting as brigade major and aide-de-camp. The battalions will enter by Storey's-gate, and will be formed up near the north-west corner of the Foreign Office by half-past three.

Sixth Brigade, numbering 5,521, under Colonel Stracey, of the Scots Guards, Colonel Bridgman and Lieutenant the Hon. L. White, also of the Scots, being the brigade major and aide-de-camp. The corps in the brigade are the South Middlesex Rifles (Colonel Wylde, C.M.G.), West Middlesex (Colonel Bell), London Scottish (Colonel Lumsden), Harrow Rifles (Major Bridgewater), Queen's Westminster (Colonel Howard Vincent, C.B., M.P.), Inns of Court Rifles (Colonel Russell), Artists (Colonel Edis), Tower Hamlets Rifle Brigade (Colonel Mapleson), and 2nd Tower Hamlets Rifles (Colonel Donald Munro). O. E. ROBERTS PRINTER TO THE H.A.C. CHISWELL ST. E.C.

Armory
Honoriable Artillery Company.
London. England.
July 11 1887.
Col H Walker

My Lord Duke, My Lords and Gentlemen, — For this most cordial and kindly gr ting to my comrades and myself, personally and as representing our comrades at home, supplementing as it does your generous hospitality which since the hour we set foot on English soil has made our stay here one continuous round of pleasure, what words that I may utter, however eloquent they may be, can adequately express our thanks? It has been said that "out of the fulness of the heart the mouth speaketh." Our hearts are almost too full for utterance. These ringing cheers of welcome, such as on many a battle-field of war in the past have heralded victories crowning British valor, have here to-night, on this field of peace, won a complete triumph. They have captured the hearts of your guests. We surrender unconditionally.

Yet why should we not have expected a warm welcome at your hands and why should we feel like strangers among you? The interchange of pleasant courtesies between the Honourable Artillery Company of London and that of Massachusetts during the last few years has awakened between them a feeling of brotherhood and good fellowship, which is highly prized by both organizations and has prevented their members from being aliens and strangers to each other. There is, however, a far stronger reason for our presence here than that of social intimacy. We come as of right, being your blood relatives of but one remove. Our two companies stand here as mother and child, each having a record in which the other may well take a family pride.

In my own New England we have yearly one festal day on which her sons and daughters who have wandered from her borders come back and gather around their paternal hearthstones, there, away from the cares and business of every-day life, to see again the loved faces of childhood, to strengthen family ties weakened, it may be, by time and distance, to renew family affection and thus to drink in a fresh, pure inspiration to reinvigorate them for life's battle.

This is our "Thanksgiving day" with you. We sit about our mother's table with thankfulness in our hearts for all that is good and great and noble in her history and that we can offer her a record of which she need not be ashamed; that we, "kith of her kin," can claim a child's place here and an interest in her past as our rightful heritage; that as members of one family we can interchange congratulations with her children here and pledge them the good wishes and the love of her other children thousands of miles away beyond the sea. Yes, it is your and our joint Thanksgiving day, the first for the two centuries and a half since our birth. May it prove the forerunner of numberless ones yet to come, which shall serve to keep alive the connection between the two organizations, and thus to aid in perpetuating an honorable friendship between them and the nations they represent that neither time nor space shall be able to sever.

The first Commander, in commission, of the Ancient and Honorable Artiller Company of Massachusetts to visit you, no more agreeable or honora mission could have fallen to my lot than with my comrades to rejoice with you on this the three hundred and fiftieth anniversary of your natal day. From every member of my command I bring the warmest good wishes that your future may be one of long and unclouded prosperity, and from them all, individually and collectively, their most cordial invitation that when one year hence we celebrate our two hundred and fiftieth anniversary you will grace our festivities with your presence; that as the child does not now forget the parent, the parent may then remember the child. We pledge you an American welcome. We will open to you our hearts and homes and do what we can to strengthen the bonds of amity you have forged so that they may endure for all time.

Three hundred and fifty years of life! As one reads your record, covering as it does the most wonderful portion of your national existence, what myriads of scenes and memories, sad, tender, joyous, grand, heroic ones crowd upon him! It is a story of wonderland in which are told the triumphs of arts, arms, literature, law and liberty; the marvellous invention and increase of industrial means and forces which, vivifying dead matter itself, have made it a potent agency for the advancement of humanity and poured untold wealth into your coffers; the development of your commerce until it whitens every sea; the growth of a little island kingdom into an imperial realm, holding within its borders men of every race and tongue, belting the earth with its possessions and following the sun with its "morning drum-beat" circling the whole earth round; a realm ruled over by a Queen who, as maiden, wife and mother, has won a greater empire in every English home, and by her authority and example has made maidenhood, wifehood and motherhood purer, nobler, truer. In this Year of Jubilee, Americans can but remember that it was the pacific counsels of Her Majesty, joined to those of Him who though now sleeping "the sleep that knows no waking" at Frogmore still lives in the reverent love of Majesty and People, that in the darkest hours of our struggle for national existence did much to prevent foreign intervention, which would have added the horrors of a foreign to those of a civil war and, without affecting the result, would have rendered the contest more desperate and destructive and alienated forever the two great branches of our English-speaking race. May all prosperity be to Her Majesty, and that wisdom which will enable her to hold her empire in bonds of affection as well as in bonds of power. One of the brightest eras of your national history was under queenly rule. May the reign of a Victoria, as did that of an Elizabeth, shed fairest lustre on its age.

We of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company also remember that upon our roll of honorary membership stands the name of your Commander, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. For his happiness and prosperity I tender, in behalf of my command as well as in my own, our earnest good wishes. Should he ever again visit our shores, we would, as did many of us years ago, cordially join in welcoming him personally and as representing this company and your great nation.

For three centuries and a half your corps has honorably borne its full share in your country's history. Read the names on your rolls and you read much of that history. So, but for a century less, has it been with our company. A few years after the first white man trod the spot whereon now stands my native city, there came to it with the little band who had left their pleasant homes in England for civil and religious liberty, Robert Keayne, one of your members, bringing with him the ideas and customs of this good city where he had lived. He recognized the fact that the sword of the flesh was needed to uphold the sword of the spirit, and doubtless with warm recollections of his old home company, of its social pleasures as well as of its public usefulness, founded on it as a model in Boston "The Military Company of the Massachusetts," now "The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts," as a "school of soldiery." He and those with him "builded better than they knew." That company, born in a wilderness, has existed ever since, growing with and aiding in the growth of the community which fostered it. In its ranks have stood our leading citizens every generation and in every grade of office, whether of old under your fla later under the flag of our Republic. To them the City which is our company's home, our State and the Nation we represent are all indebted for services at the council board and on fields of war, which, freely given for the public good, have proven our organization to be worthy of its ancestral blood.

What grander national histories are there than those our two companies have shared in, and what two kindred organizations, the world over, can or ought to be prouder of their past? Your national life covers a thousand years during which the energy, courage, endurance, ability and faith of your people have builded an empire the sun never sets upon. We show you an empire, two centuries and a half ago a wilderness, the hunting ground of savages, to-day spanning a continent with sixty millions of English-speaking people. Your barons at Runnymede upheld the great charter of English rights by the sword; a century ~~later~~ our chosen representatives staked "life and fortune and sacred honor" in defence of a declaration of national independence instinct with the spirit of that charter. The old Berseker fighting blood, which has carried the red cross of England in triumph round the world, flowed in the veins of the men who on the wintry shores of New England, its first settlers, dared the dangers of the wilderness and the savage, and whose sons, in our time, flocked by hundreds of thousands to the battle in defence of their flag, even as men flock to a feast, and freely gave their lives to preserve the government that flag symbolized. The spirit of your great Admiral Nelson, a sea king the Vikings might be proud of, may well hail the shade of our great Admiral Farragut as his compeer. Our poets and orators sing and speak in the same tongue as yours. Our painters and sculptors vie in friendly rivalry with yours in making the lifeless canvas and the breathless marble immortal. Our men of science, with yours, search out the secrets of the starry heavens and the innermost earth. Beside Franklin and Parry stand Kane and Greely, while Stanley and Livingstone have opened the "dark continent" to the world. Your Watt, your Arkwright and your Stephenson have joined with our Fulton, our Whitney and our Morse in making nature subservient to man and the boast of Puck a reality. Above all, that spirit of Christianity and brotherhood which in your midst is pouring out its wealth with unstinted hand for the mental, moral and physical elevation of the people finds its counterpart across the sea.

Members of these two organizations, representing these two great nations, we stand here together, each proud of his country, sensitive of her honor, loyal to her flag, giving his first and entire allegiance to that country as honor and patriotism demand, yet each conscious that his country is great enough to be above petty passions and mean prejudices and ready to yield to the other all that admiration, love and support which national dignity and self-respect can grant and can rightfully demand in return. More or less than this national manliness can neither ask nor give. Of this manliness let our two companies, as ever heretofore, be always hereafter bright exemplars. So shall they prove a bond of union stronger than links of steel, imperishable because based on self-respect, between our two English-speaking nations.

Your letter, enclosing one from Colonel Borton, I have shown to the Prince of Wales.

His Royal Highness says that, after the 27th, he hopes to be able to grant an interview to the Americans, but this he will settle positively later on.

As to the Americans attending the Review, the best person to apply to will be, I should say, Major-General Godfrey Clerk, War Office.

On Saturday July 16th the delegation of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company gave a dinner to the officers of the Honorable Artillery Company of London and others from whom the delegation had received courtesies. It had been arranged to give it on Thursday July 14th but circumstances compelled a change of date. The sending out the invitations was consequently delayed. and this taken in connection with the fact that the London season was just closing and the further fact that it was necessary to have the dinner on Saturday prevented many from attending. The letters following were received in answer to invitations, those declining showing that the absence of the writers was regretted by them as well as by the delegation.

July 16th 1887. Col H. Walker

Capt. Williams and Gentlemen of the Honourable Artillery Company, — After having thanked you over and over again for the many courtesies shown to me and those with me, I can now respond to this toast and the warm welcome you have given it only by the simple phrase, I thank you; a phrase which, when the heart echoes its utterance by the lips, is pregnant with pleasure to both the giver and the receiver. When I say to you, to all in this great city who have met us with friendly word or act or wish, I thank you, the hearts of my comrades throb amen.

Nearly three weeks since we came as strangers to you, close relatives though we were. Our experience since has impressed upon us the closeness and kindliness of that relationship; and we also come to the hour of parting with both regret and pleasure; regret, at leaving the companionship which has made our stay so agreeable to us, many fold more so than we anticipated; pleasure, that our mission here has done something toward bringing our two companies into more intimate relations and laying the foundation of a sincere friendship, which will prove lasting and beneficial to both.

Soon we who are about to leave you will be thousands of miles away across the ocean, but between you and us, aye, between your company and ours, will stretch the "mystic cords of memory," more sensitive and more potent far than the track which the lightning follows from shore to shore, and over them will go back and forth messages of love to bind us together in bonds of ever-increasing affection.

There is a peculiar significance and appropriateness in this meeting. Existing for centuries as active agencies for the public good in their respective countries, imbued with the social and political ideas and principles of their respective peoples, their members at all times holding positions of honor and trust in the public service, civil and military, these companies have embodied in themselves the highest type of a true citizen soldiery, a necessity for the very existence of a free people, its defence in foreign wars and in civil commotions, both of which will at times threaten that existence. Of such a soldiery, the oldest military organizations in their respective countries, they have stood at the head and have been its school and example.

Yes, the Honourable Artillery Company has for three hundred and fifty years stood at the head of England's citizen soldiery and done yeoman service in her cause, as told on your history's page and by many a "storied urn and animated bust" throughout your land.

In passing through St. Paul's Cathedral a few days since, two memorials on its walls struck me most forcibly; one to the officers, sailors and marines of Her Majesty's ship "Captain," which foundered at sea, and the other inscribed with the names of several officers of the Guards who fell at Inkerman. The former showed me that as in my own land a grateful nation has placed with reverent hands in national cemeteries, side by side, the officer and the private soldier who alike fell in its defence, so here has a nation's gratitude rendered like homage to men of every rank who have died in its cause.

The fight at Inkerman was one of the fiercest in your history, illustrating well the tenacity, courage and devotion of your soldiery. Picture that fearful struggle, that cold November morning, that dreary plateau shrouded in wintry mists beneath which stood six thousand of your soldiers for Queen and country. Hidden by that same mist had gathered an overwhelming force of foemen. We see the sudden attack met by that little few with undaunted courage, who, fighting not under generals, not by divisions or regiments, but by battalions, by companies, by squads, by single men, fell, dyeing the ground with a richer crimson than the flag they gave their lives for, until their gallant allies swept in and snatched from the foe the victory almost within his grasp.

Who were these men who thus went forth to death for England's honor? English gentlemen and not less gallant English yeomanry. Regular soldiers do you say? Yes then, but citizens then and before, who had left the pleasant firesides of England and proudly wearing her uniform had protected her honor with their lives. They came right out of your peaceful, civil life where you of the Honourable Artillery Company are to-day. Into the ranks depleted by that Crimean winter, to fill the places made vacant by bullet and by disease, they went, in many cases with far less knowledge of a soldier's life than you possess. Such organizations as yours and ours, though differing somewhat from those of the regular armies, are one with them; their members all citizens, all soldiers, combining the qualifications of both, not mere hired mercenaries. Woe be to your land and mine when its citizens, for any cause losing their patriotism and their manliness, shall neglect or refuse to do a soldier's duty when their country calls for it, or when its soldiers, from ambition or some other reason, shall not, when their services as soldiers are no longer required, cheerfully return to civil life and bow to civil law.

With a true citizen-soldier behind the law any country's government is safe, and in no countries is there a truer citizen soldiery than in yours and mine, as typified by our two companies. No grander sight was ever seen than when at the close of the late civil war in my native land, the supremacy of the union having been established, its armies, hundreds of thousands strong, passed in review before the nation's Chief, and without a single disturbance anywhere melted away into the walks of civil life from which they had sprung when that union they loved was threatened with destruction.

At this hour of parting what better God speed can I give your country and your company than to wish that you may, as long as that country exists, stand as in the past its model for a citizen soldiery, and that between your company and mine the only rivalry may be to excel in kindly feeling each for the other, and in everything which goes to make up the perfect citizen and the perfect soldier?

NORTHWESTERN HOTEL, LIVERPOOL,
Aug. 16, 1887.

TO THE COURT OF ASSISTANTS OF THE HONOURABLE ARTILLERY COMPANY:

Gentlemen, — I cannot leave England without expressing to your Court and to its members individually, my thanks for your kindness to myself and to the other members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts, who joined with you in celebrating the three hundred and fiftieth anniversary of your corps.

Your unceasing efforts to make our stay with you one of pleasure were crowned with perfect success. You made us feel that we were at home and not strangers in a strange land.

When we decided to visit you we had not thought of so long enjoying your hospitality, but the temptation to do so came in such generous shape we could not resist it.

Be assured we can never forget our visit to you. We confidently hope it will be followed by a return one of your company to us a year hence. Such an interchange of companionship can but prove of advantage to both and we heartily desire it.

In writing this I know I express the sincere sentiments of every member of my company.

With the best of wishes for yourselves and for the Honourable Artillery Company, I am, yours very sincerely,

HENRY WALKER (COLONEL),
Captain Commanding the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts.

NORTHWESTERN HOTEL, LIVERPOOL,
Aug. 16, 1887.

My Lord Duke, — I wish to tender to you, and through you to the Honourable Artillery Company of London, my most cordial thanks for the courtesies and attention paid to myself and the other members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts, who have lately been the guests of your command at the celebration of its three hundred and fiftieth anniversary.

Not a single circumstance has occurred to mar the pleasure of our visit. Each member of your organization vied with the others in ministering to our comfort and enjoyment. We appreciate the good-will and work of all. This meeting of our two companies, already in friendly relations with each other, will inspire in my own a higher regard for the parent corps, the military bearing and soldierly efficiency of which will awaken in the child a spirit of emulation tending to its advantage, or rather, may I say, to the advantage of both.

We all sincerely hope that your company will join us in celebrating our two hundred and fiftieth anniversary next year. We cannot offer you a warmer welcome than we have received, but we can prove that we have not forgotten that welcome and how well we appreciate it. In this appreciation the community in which we live will heartily join.

I wish this letter may be communicated to the Honourable Artillery Company in such way as Your Grace may deem best, so that every member may see that his efforts in our behalf are remembered by us.

Hoping that all prosperity may attend your company, and that for generations to come it may stand, as now, at the head of the citizen soldiery of England,

I am, Your Grace's obedient servant,

HENRY WALKER,
Commanding the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts.

HIS GRACE THE DUKE OF PORTLAND,
Lieut.-Col. of the Honourable Artillery Company of London.

'LION' HOTEL, WORKSOP,

THE Drive commences almost immediately upon leaving Worksop with the most delightful Scenery which Sherwood Forest affords, whence the Visitor passes through the magnificent Park of the seat of His Grace the Duke of Newcastle. From the Bridge which spans the Lake, the Visitor has a distant, although distinct, view of the House, Pleasure Grounds, and Terrace, with its Fountain, ornamental Flower Beds, &c.

The scene here afforded is truly magnificent—stretching through the plantations to the Ducal Mansion—whilst the gentle murmur of the Waterfall, the music of the cooing Dove, the startled cry of the Pheasant, and the no less dissonant notes of aquatic birds which frequent this spot, greatly enhance its attractions.—CLUMBER HOUSE (a portion of which was recently destroyed by fire) being approached, will be seen to be in an unfinished state, although sufficiently advanced to furnish an idea of the noble structure contemplated on completion.

The Drive being continued we shortly approach the residence of the Earl Manvers.—THORESBY HOUSE, situated in an extensive and well-wooded Park, stocked with numerous herds of Deer, is one of the most stately of English mansions, and is built of Steetley Stone, in the modern Elizabethan style. It has three fronts, the eastern having 180 feet, the western 159 feet, and the southern 182 feet in length. The rooms are well-proportioned, richly panelled and decorated in oak. The apartments are splendidly furnished. The lake is formed from the river Meden, and is a beautiful sheet of water. The Park forms part of Sherwood Forest, and embraces a circuit of ten miles.

Proceeding, we pass through the "Buck Gates," and thence through Avenues of fine old Oaks; the Visitor is now in the midst of that portion of Sherwood Forest known as the "Birklands." Here, in the forest of Oaks, is a scene, which, for grandeur and great beauty combined, can scarcely be equalled in the Kingdom.

The finest of these old Forest Trees is the "Major Oak,"—a truly splendid specimen, of huge dimensions,—"Whose Boughs are mossed with age, and High Top bald with Dry Antiquity,"

"The home of the brave and the free,
All under the Greenwood Tree."

under whose leafy crown Luncheon is generally partaken of, and the horses baited.

We are now in the midst of the home of the once far-famed Robin Hood and his "Merrie Men."

En Route again the journey is continued via the village of Edwinstowe until we enter a superb Avenue, leading into the "Duke's Drive." This is—par excellence—the gem of the Welbeck Estate. For five miles you roll splendidly along over a broad sweep of grass, environed with woodlands, Avenues opening out here and there and showing the loveliest of vistas. You pass "Robin Hood's Larder," an old oak said to be used by the out-law king for hanging his prime joints of venison; also a picturesque Russian log-house, used as a place of refreshment for the Duke's company during the shooting season, and by the celebrated "Parliament Oak." Proceeding, IMPORTANT NOTICE.* — VISITORS must not "Pic-Nic" upon, or otherwise use as a place of stoppage for meals, any portion of the ground within the precincts of the "Dukeries," other than the piece surrounding the "Major" Oak. The greatest care must be taken that all bottles, corks, papers or other refuse be cleared up before departure. Also that no unseemly noise or misconduct occur that may in any way be a source of annoyance to the Noble Owners or their officials.

As the privilege of enjoying the beauties of the "Dukeries" entirely depends upon the careful carrying out of these rules, Visitors are respectfully requested to do all they can to assist in the due observance of these remarks.

F. L. GREEN, PROPRIETOR.

WELBECK,

the princely home of the Duke of Portland, is shortly in view.

WELBECK PARK, with its wide-spreading woods, is now entered; numberless herds of deer here attract the Visitor's notice, and the wild woodland scenery is beautiful in the extreme; not the least item of interest here being the venerable "Greendale Oak," said to be 800 years old.

The most remarkable of the great and varied works accomplished by the late noble owner, are the Subterranean Passages or Tunnels through which the Visitor passes.

THE ABBEY and PLEASURE GROUNDS, viewed from the Lake, present a most imposing aspect. Here are also the most magnificent Riding School and Stables in the Kingdom.

To those who wish to spend two days in inspecting the sights of this interesting neighbourhood, a rather more extended plan is presented, viz: by continuing the Drive to Mansfield, whereby Visitors have ample opportunity of seeing the whole of the far-famed 'Dukeries.'

A reference to the Map (on other side) and particulars herewith will doubtless afford a ready explanation.

'SWAN' HOTEL, MANSFIELD,

THE Drive commences almost immediately upon leaving Mansfield with the most delightful Scenery which Sherwood Forest affords, and by the celebrated Water Meadows, described by The Times' Agricultural Commissioner as the pride of Nottinghamshire, and "the most gigantic improvement of their kind in England," until the pretty little village of Edwinstowe is reached, situated in the confines of the Forest, thence through Avenues of fine old Oaks; the Visitor is now in the midst of that portion of Sherwood Forest known as the "Birklands." Here, in the forest of Oaks, is a scene, which, for grandeur and great beauty combined, can scarcely be equalled in the Kingdom.

HARDWICK HALL

—"Mo[illegible] glass than wall," as the homely distich goes,—is situate about five miles to the north-west of Mansfield, and is owned by the Marquis of Hartington. It stands upon an elevated tableland, from whence there are some charming views of the chain of romantic hills bordering upon the Peak of Derbyshire.

The Park, with its herds of deer, stately oaks, and richly wooded scenery, presents many attractive features. The present hall was built by the renowned "Bess of Hardwick," in about the year 1857. A short distance from here stand the noble ruins of what is termed the "Old Hall"—a once most beautiful residence. The apartments are of great magnificence, and the Picture Gallery, Great Hall, Chapel, Presence Chamber, and other rooms, are all a source of great interest.

NEWSTEAD ABBEY,

the home and grave of Byron,—"half castle, half convent"—is of especial interest to Visitors. Now the residence of W. F. Webb, Esq., it will ever be remembered as the home of Lord Byron, whose rooms remain furnished as they were during the poet's occupancy.

The buildings present a charming appearance when viewed from the Terrace, and the surrounding grounds, spacious lakes, woods and plantations, are delightful.

Col H Walker.
Reception Faneuil Hall Boston Aug 29" 1887.

Comrades and Friends, — When, a few weeks since, I stood before a brilliant gathering of the Honourable Artillery Company of London as your representative and received a most hospitable welcome, I said that my heart was almost too full to utter the thanks I felt. Much greater is my embarrassment now to find words in which to thank you for this your unexpected welcome to me and to those who with me carried over the sea your good wishes to our ancestral corps. It proves the truth of the saying that a prophet is never without honor excepting among his own kindred and in his own country. All rules are proven by the exceptions and this generous, spontaneous welcome is the exception. The commission, as your Commander, with which you honored me, brought with it great responsibilities in this Jubilee Year of our mother company and of our own: two organizations whose age, relationship, character and history make them fitting representatives of the two great peoples of which they form a part. Separated for two and a half centuries, they have, until within the past few years, known but little of each other, that little being limited chiefly to a correspondence between individual members.

There were, however, two marked events which gave them a common interest, the acceptance by the late Prince Consort, and afterward by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales of an honorary membership in the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, each at the time of his acceptance commanding the Honourable Artillery Company of London. Neither organization, however, until now, seemed to appreciate fully the peculiarity of that relationship and character, the length of that life of each and the importance of the historical epochs which it covered and in which it had shared. The growth of such a personal intercourse, gradually increasing and leading to an official one, culminated this year. Within a twelvemonth of each other the anniversary of their respective natal days stand, marking by centuries the life of each and, for the first time in their histories, calling them together around each other's festal board to enjoy each other's hospitality, to mutually congratulate each other on their past and to wish each other prosperity in the future. That our company should be fittingly represented at the three hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Honourable Artillery Company; that in word and act we should show that the children had not deteriorated by being transplanted; that, as Americans believing in our own country and its institutions, we were broad enough to be proud of our connection with the company from which we sprang and to see and acknowledge all that was good in it and our motherland; in fine, to show that our organization was one to which the other might gladly claim relationship was a work, the responsibility of which fell largely upon me as your Commander. I have tried not to disappoint your hopes, as did every man of your delegation with me. They are worthy of your thanks and mine for the continued support given by them to me and for the creditable manner in which they performed every duty assigned to them.

Of the visits to be interchanged by the two organizations the first has been made. Boston has visited London. Your representatives found there a military company, the Honourable Artillery, venerable in its age and surroundings but ever young in its character, complete in all arms, efficient and soldierly, and a host whose hospitality was unbounded, or limited, if at all, only by the physical endurance of its guests. To His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, its Captain-General and Colonel, our company is under deepest obligations for special honors conferred on its delegation. To the Duke of Portland, to the Court of Assistants, to the Committee under the chairmanship of Capt. Williams, to all the Officers and Members of the Honourable Artillery are we greatly indebted. In all one purpose was evident, that was to give us a welcome which should insure our pleasure and comfort during our stay with them, and that purpose was accomplished in letter and in spirit. I know of nothing done which ought not to have been done and nothing left undone which ought to have been done.

Next year London will visit Boston. I know you and our community well enough to believe that you will open wide your hearts, that our good city will fling wide open its gates, aye, and keep them open to every man of the Honourable Artillery of London who shall honor our two hundred and fiftieth anniversary with his presence. I gave them a cordial invitation to come. I knew you would indorse it by both word and act.

How the responsibility placed upon me has been met I leave others to say, but as I look upon your faces so full of welcome and listen to your words of congratulation I can but feel that you are satisfied and I am content, the more so as I fain believe that our brethren across the ocean will cordially say amen to your good wishes for me and those who, with me, were their guests. To you and them my thanks are due, and to you and them, not two companies, but one in bonds of loving fraternity, I give them with all my heart.

Reports

The story of the visit of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company by a delegation to its parent corps in June, 1887, and of the hospitality which greeted it and unceasingly labored for its comfort and pleasure until it left England, was well told by Commander Walker in a report made by him at a reception given by the company to the delegation on its return home, Aug. 30, 1887.

To the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts:

As your Commander and head of the delegation which represented you in England at the celebration by the Honourable Artillery Company of London of its Three Hundred and Fiftieth Anniversary, I make the following report of the part your delegates took in that celebration, and of the manner in which they were received and entertained by that company and by others not members thereof.

In making such report only the more salient portions of what was done by your representatives can be specially referred to. The time not covered by these was devoted to seeing places and objects of interest in such manner as each man desired, generally under the guidance of one or more of the members of the Honourable Artillery Company.

It also seems desirable to state some facts relating to the invitation received by our company as bearing upon the way in which its delegation was made up. That invitation read as follows: —

HONOURABLE ARTILLERY COMPANY, ARMOURY HOUSE,
FINSBURY, May 25, 1887.

Sir, — I am directed by the President, Vice-President, Treasurer and Court of Assistants of the Honourable Artillery Company, on behalf of the members of the regiment, to request the honor of your company, the officers and a delegation of the members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston, at the forthcoming celebration of the three hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Honourable Artillery Company of London, which will be celebrated at headquarters on Monday, the 11th of July next.

The Court would suggest that the delegation should reach London not later than Friday, the 1st of July, in order to witness the Royal Volunteer review before the Queen on the 2d of July, and during the following week the delegation will be entertained by various clubs and associations connected with the regiment, and escorted on various excursions of interest.

The Court will be glad to know the probable number of the delegation, in order that adequate arrangements may be made for their comfort and enjoyment.

Believe me, very truly yours,
R. W. BLAND-HUNT,
Secretary.

To Commandant, Officers, and Members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston.

The celebration took place at the Armoury House of the Honourable Artillery Company in London, on the day designated, which was more than a month earlier than was originally intended, owing to circumstances connected with the Queen's Jubilee.

The officers of our Company were commissioned on June 6th, 1887. A special meeting of the Company was held at the armory on June 13th following, at which the invitation was unanimously and most enthusiastically accepted.

The change in the date of the celebration as above stated, and the desire cordially expressed in the invitation that any delegation we might send to London should reach that city prior to July 2nd following, in time to witness a review of the volunteers by the Queen, left but little opportunity for our company to take such steps as appeared most desirable in the matter. It was very difficult for our members to leave business for the time which would be required, on the short notice given, and for that reason it was found impossible to specifically designate who should represent us. It was, therefore, voted > "That the commanding officer and such other members of the company as may be present and report to him, be authorized to represent the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company at the three hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Honourable Artillery Company of London, July 11 next."

In pursuance of this vote, your Commander, with Lieuts. Jacob Silloway and John C. Dalton and Mr. Freeman A. Walker, sailed from New York, for Liverpool, on the steamer "Servia," on June 18th, 1887. The members of the delegation reported to him, on the dates below stated, at the headquarters at the Royal Hotel, Blackfriars, London. Lieuts. Silloway and Dalton and Mr. George H. Leonard arrived in London several days before your Commander and were immediately and most courteously entertained by members of the Honourable Artillery Company. The other members of the delegation reported on the days of their respective arrivals in that city.

Col. Henry Walker arrived in London		June 29, 1887.

With the delegation were seven ladies, who, through the courtesy of its hosts, were enabled to participate in a portion of the festivities enjoyed by it.

In anticipation of our coming, the Court of Assistants of the Honourable Artillery Company, itself being the general committee, appointed a sub-committee to which was assigned the duty of attending to our entertainment, as follows : —

SUB-COMMITTEE.

Lieut.-Col. his Grace the Duke of Portland.
Lieut.-Col. Charles J. Borton, Adjutant.
Capt. C. Woolmer-Williams, Chairman.
Capt. W. L. Holt. Capt. W. J. Fry.
Capt. W. H. Baker. Capt. R. H. Nunn.
Lieut. T. W. Carlton.

While every member of the Honourable Artillery Company, when opportunity offered, vied with the others in ministering to our pleasures, this sub-committee, especially its chairman, and also Major Gen. R. W. Bland-Hunt, Secretary of the Court of Assistants, were unremitting in their efforts in our behalf and those efforts were crowned with success. How continued and varied they were the following statement of the entertainments and receptions provided for us will clearly show : —

Tuesday, June 28. — A reception and ball was given by the Corporation of London at the Guildhall in honor of the Queen's Jubilee, which was attended by the royal visitors then in London and their suites, to the number, as was stated, of nearly three hundred. The Honourable Artillery Company furnished a guard of honor for His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. Your Commander received an invitation, but not reaching London in time to be present Mr. George H. Leonard attended in his place.

Wednesday, June 29. — Lieuts. Silloway and Dalton and Mr. George H. Leonard, being the only members of the delegation then in London, attended the Henley Regatta, the most noted of all the English regattas, under escort of several members of the Honourable Artillery Company.

Thursday, June 30. — A reception, so cordial as to make the recipients feel at once that they were among friends, was given to the delegation at the headquarters of the Honourable Artillery Company. After an inspection of the armory and the grounds attached thereto with the many objects of interest therein, the collection of three and a half centuries, supper was taken in the room of the Court of Assistants.

Friday, July 1. — The delegation visited St. Paul's Cathedral, the Bank of England, the Guildhall and other places of interest with Lieut. W. H. Bateman, taking lunch with him at the Guildhall Restaurant.

Saturday, July 2. — Lunch was taken at the headquarters of the Honourable Artillery Company at noon, after which the delegation, under escort of Lieut.-Col. W. H. Snell and Capt. Edward Blanks, witnessed a review of 27,000 volunteers by the Queen, seats being provided for it inside the gates of Buckingham Palace near the royal stand. While there it had the pleasure of meeting, among other distinguished personages, the contingent of officers from the native regiments of India which had come to London to take part in the Jubilee celebration. The Honourable Artillery Company led the column as it passed in review before Her Majesty, with His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, K. G., Captain General and Colonel, in command, and His Grace the Duke of Portland as Lieutenant-Colonel. It was composed of a squadron of cavalry, a battery of six guns and three companies of infantry, and presented a very soldierly appearance. The entire body of the troops was one in which any nation might well take pride. After the review the delegation with its escort lunched at its headquarters, the Royal Hotel.

Sunday, July 3. — Part of the delegation attended divine service at St. Paul's Cathedral, others at St. Margaret's, the parish church of Westminster. Several members of the Honourable Artillery Company visited headquarters during the day.

Monday, July 4. — The delegation dined with Capt. C. Woolmer-Williams, chairman of the sub-committee of the Honourable Artillery Company, to whom is largely due the intimacy between the two companies, at his residence, Cullington House, Stoke Newington, where our nation's birthday was toasted with all honors. Later in the evening it attended a reception given by Mr. Henry F. Gillig at the Grosvenor Gallery, meeting there many of the leading Americans then in London. Your Commander had received an invitation to be present at the laying of the corner-stone of the "Imperial Institute for the United Kingdom, the Colonies and India, by her Majesty the Queen," on this day, but was prevented from attending by prior engagements.

Tuesday, July 5. — The delegation during the day visited various parts of London and dined with Major W. E. Williams, F. S. A., at the Holborn Restaurant, several members of the Honourable Artillery Company being present.

Wednesday, July 6. — Under escort of Capt. C. Woolmer-Williams, the delegation visited the Tower of London, after which, by invitation of Mr. H. Graham King, a lunch was taken with the Lord Mayor, Sir Reginald Hanson ; the Sheriffs of London, Sir Henry Isaacs and Sir Alfred Kirby ; and the City Sewers Committee. In the afternoon, under charge of the Mess Club of the Honourable Artillery Company, a visit was made to the Woolwich Arsenal, and afterward to the Greenwich Hospital, Picture Gallery, Museum and Grounds. Later a whitebait dinner, presided over by Major W. L. Holt, was served at the famous "Ship," Greenwich.

Thursday, July 7. — The delegation, with ladies, were taken by the Fitzroy Lodge, a Masonic organization existing within the Honourable Artillery Company, on an "outing" up the Thames, going to Henley by rail and from thence by steamers to Goring. Lunch was provided on the boats and dinner at Tilehurst, Major Alfred Durrant in the chair.

Friday, July 8. — Part of the delegation visited the House of Commons under passes from J. H. Puleston, Esq., M. P. Later in the day all its members dined with the Fitzroy Chapter at the armory of the Honourable Artillery Company, Mr. Hawkins presiding. Prior to the dinner a session of the Chapter was held, at which the members of the delegation who belong to the Masonic fraternity were present and received special honor.

Saturday, July 9. — The delegation, with ladies, by invitation of Major Henry Rawlins, commanding the battery of the Honourable Artillery Company, visited Brighton, a special car being provided for its accommodation and several members of the Honourable Artillery Company accompanying it. Lunch was taken at the residence of Major Rawlins, and also dinner after a delightful drive about the city and a view of the various objects of interest there to be seen.

Sunday, July 10. — By invitation of Lieut.-Col. W. H. Snell the delegation dined with him at his residence, The Mount, S. Norwood, meeting with a hospitality as generous as his rose garden was fragrant.

Monday, July 11. — On this day was celebrated the three hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Honourable Artillery Company. During the afternoon there was a parade and drill on the armory grounds, Lieut.-Col. His Grace the Duke of Portland in command. In the evening the whole delegation attended a banquet given in the drill hall which was most tastefully decorated for the occasion with flags, those of England and United States being most conspicuous. The Duke of Portland presided. Among other distinguished guests at the table were the American Minister Mr. Phelps, Field Marshal Lord Napier of Magdala, G. C. B., Admiral Commerell, Gen. Gipps, C. B., commanding the home forces, the Lord Mayor and the Sheriffs of London, Sir John Monckton, Col. Ross (Grenadier Guards), J. H. Puleston, Esq., M. P., and others.

A full account of the proceedings appeared in the papers of the day both in London and Boston. The affair was a complete success and one which no one present can ever forget. The reception accorded to your Commander, who responded to a toast proposed by Capt. C. Woolmer-Williams in honor of our company, was most enthusiastic, as it was to all the delegation.

Tuesday, July 12.—The delegation, with ladies, visited the camp at Wimbledon, the well-known shooting range for the English soldiery, regular and volunteer, and passed a most interesting day witnessing the competition for prizes, several members of the Honourable Artillery Company holding high rank among the competitors. Dinner was taken at the Pavilion. The trip was made by coach and was very enjoyable.

Wednesday, July 13.—At noon, by invitation of the proprietors, the delegation visited the brewery of Truman, Hanbury & Buxton, one of the largest in London, where lunch was provided by the partners. At 5 P. M. dinner was taken with Major W. H. Baker, commanding the cavalry of the Honourable Artillery Company, at The Falstaff, and at 8 P. M. the delegation attended a regimental smoking concert at the armory of the company, Capt. Williams presiding.

Thursday, July 14.—The delegation dined at the headquarters of the Honourable Artillery Company with the Officers' Club, Lord Colville of Culross, K. T., presiding.

Friday, July 15.—By invitation of Mr. Walter F Hammond, the delegation, with ladies, went by coach to Kempton Park to attend the races and spent a most enjoyable day there taking lunch on the grounds. Returning to London, three members of the delegation, Lieut. Fottler, Mr. Newman and Mr. Johnson, dined with the Lord Mayor, Sir Reginald Hanson, at the Mansion House, and the remaining eight with Lieut.-Col. Charles J. Borton, Adjutant of the Honourable Artillery Company, at the Naval and Military Club, Piccadilly.

Saturday, July 16.—At noon the delegation lunched with Lieut. W. H. Hayward of the Honourable Artillery Company at the National Liberal Club. From there, with Capt. Williams and Lieut. Hayward they proceeded to St. James Palace to attend the Queen's Levee. While waiting for this purpose His Grace the Duke of Portland intimated that His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales had signified his intention of coming to the palace somewhat earlier than he had proposed in order to give the delegation a private reception. This was done, and the honor, so courteously tendered and so kindly given, is a source of high gratification to the members of the delegation as it should be to our whole company.

After the Reception the delegation was presented officially to his Royal Highness at the Levee, which, by order of the Queen, was equivalent to a presentation to Her Majesty. At both the Reception and the Levee His Grace the Duke of Portland made the presentation. After the Levee the delegation with its escort was photographed at the Pall Mall Gallery and then lunched at the Royal Hotel.

In the evening the delegation, in behalf of our company, gave a dinner at the Holborn Restaurant to the Court of Assistants and the Officers of the Honourable Artillery Company, and other gentlemen from whom attentions had been received. Although over fifty guests were present, the number would have been larger had the dinner taken place on some previous evening. It was intended to have it immediately after July 11th, but hospitalities pressed on your representatives compelled its postponement from day to day, until but little time was left for issuing invitations for July 16th, after which the members of the delegation, owing to previous arrangements, could not be in London. The evening thus almost compulsorily selected was that of Saturday, and being near the close of the London season and the weather being extremely warm, several gentlemen whose presence we desired were prevented from being with us by social and official duties and engagements. Their absence was regretted by us and, judging from the letters received from them, by the writers also.

The dinner of July 16th closed the official character of the delegation, most of the members leaving London on the following day. They had received a whole-hearted hospitality for nearly three weeks which only ended by their absolute refusal to receive more. Before they left London, Major George A. Raikes, F. S. A., presented to each member of the delegation a copy of his valuable history of the Honourable Artillery Company, in which is embodied a condensed history of our own company and which has done much to make the two organizations known to each other.

On their return from the Continent, your Commander and Mr. Freeman A. Walker visited Welbeck Abbey on Aug. 13th, by invitation of His Grace the Duke of Portland and there passed some of the pleasantest hours of their stay in England. Lunch was taken at the Abbey by invitation of Lady Bolsover, after a drive over the estate, one of the most beautiful and complete in England, and comprising the historic Sherwood Forest of Robin Hood. A view was also had of the numerous works of art and other objects of interest with which the Abbey itself is enriched, and of the famous underground library, ball room and tunnels.

While acknowledging our indebtedness to the Honourable Artillery Company as a whole, we must particularly name, beside those members and others whose courtesies are hereinbefore mentioned, the following from whom some special attention was received:—

Field Marshal Lord Napier of Magdala; Gen. Gipps, C. B.; Sir Alfred Kirby, Sheriff of London; Sir Henry Isaacs, Sheriff of London; Major A. Durrant; Capt. H. Bateman; Lieut J A. McKenzie; Lieut. R. Birkett; Mr. J. G. Gibbon; Mr. E. W. Brooking; Mr. E. W. Parkes; the Master, Wardens and Assistants of the Worshipful Company of Drapers; the Master, Wardens and Assistants of the Worshipful Company of Leathersellers; the Proprietor of the De-Keyser's Royal Hotel; Mr. E. A. Perry, Boston Herald; Mr. MacLean, Associated Press; The New York Herald; The London Times; The Standard; The Daily Telegraph; The Morning Post; The Daily Chronicle; The City Press; The Referee.

To Lady Bolsover and other ladies, to whom the members of your delegation are indebted for courtesies which afforded them so much pleasure and are among the pleasantest memories connected with their mission, they tender their most sincere thanks.

To the parent company, your Commander, as by you authorized, conveyed a cordial invitation for it to join in the celebration of our two hundred and fiftieth anniversary in June next. He hopes and believes that a goodly number of its members will grace our festivities on that occasion and receive the unstinted welcome he promised them.

Headquarters, appropriately marked by a stand of British and American flags intertwined, were opened at the Royal Hotel on July 2nd, over which, during our stay, the proprietors hoisted the stars and stripes. These headquarters proved a great convenience and were kept open until July 17th following, when the delegation left London.

An account of the expenses incurred by the delegation on behalf of the company, chiefly for the headquarters and the dinner given on July 16th, in honor of the Honourable Artillery Company, is presented herewith. It is to be noted that each member of the delegation paid his own personal expenses.

In closing this report it must be repeated that what has been above told is but the outline of what was done for and by your representatives while the guests of the parent company. They believe that the members of both organizations rejoiced at the friendly relations established between them, regretted the hour of parting and look forward to a pleasant reunion at the celebration of our two hundred and fiftieth anniversary next spring.

The soldierly qualities exhibited by the Honourable Artillery Company greatly impressed your delegation, and inspired the hope that our own company might be led to earnest and renewed exertions to regain the position it so long held as the "school of soldiery" in this Commonwealth.

To you, the members of your delegation return their sincere thanks for your high appreciation of the way in which they performed their duties while representing you in England, as evidenced by the reception you gave them on their return home. Your Commander must also thank those who were associated with him in his mission abroad for the dignified manner in which they fulfilled the duties assigned to them, and the unswerving support they gave him in making that mission a success and a credit not only to our company, but to our city, state and country.

R.O. The following letter from Colonel Walker, commanding the Ancient and Honourable Artillery Company of Massachusetts, U. S. America, is published for information :—

North Western Hotel, Liverpool,
August 16th, 1887.

My Lord Duke,

I wish to tender to you, and through you to the Honourable Artillery Company of London, my most cordial thanks for the courtesies and attention paid to myself and the other members of the Ancient and Honourable Artillery Company of Massachusetts, who have lateley been the guests of your Command at the celebration of its three-hundred-and-fiftieth Anniversary.

Not a single circumstance has occurred to mar the pleasure of our visit. Each member of your organization vied with the others in ministering to our comfort and enjoyment. We appreciate the good-will and work of all. This meeting of our two Companies, already in friendly relations with each other, will inspire in my own a higher regard for the parent corps, the military bearing and soldierly efficiency of which will awaken in the child a spirit of emulation tendering to its advantage, or rather, may I say, to the advantage of both.

We all sincerely hope that your Company will join us in celebrating our two-hundred-and-fiftieth Anniversary next year. We cannot offer you a warmer welcome than we have received, but we can prove that we have not forgotten that welcome, and how well we appreciate it. In this appreciation the community in which we live will heartily join.

I wish this letter may be communicated to the Honourable Artillery Company in such way as Your Grace may deem best, so that every member may see that his efforts in our behalf are remembered by us.

Hoping that all prosperity may attend your Company, and that for generations to come it may stand as now, at the head of the Citizen Soldiery of England.

I am,
Your Grace's obedient Servant,

Commanding the Ancient & Honourable Artillery Company of Massachusetts.

Dear Colonel.

It came to my mind last night after I left you that I had heard somewhere that Genl Dalton had sent the application to the War Dept. Now our Canadian friends advise me that the place to send it is to the State Dept and from there to the British Minister at Washington from there to Ottawa & then return the same way. If he has made this mistake it may have made some delay — I thought you might like to know this before

ARMORY A. & H. A. CO.,
BOSTON, Feb. 7, 1888.

The attention of members of the Company is called to the report of the Committee on Badges, which has been adopted by the Company, and is published for your information.

GEO. H. ALLEN,
Clerk A. & H. A. Co.

ARMORY A. & H. A. CO.,
FANEUIL HALL, BOSTON, Jan. 30, 1888.

TO THE MEMBERS OF A. & H. A. CO.:

Gentlemen, —

The Committee on Company Badge have the honor to report that they have given the subject careful consideration, and decide in favor of the adoption of a badge like the sample herewith presented.

The design consists of a pair of crossed cannon in deadened gold as the pin; across the face runs a bar in polished gold, with the inscription A. & H. A. Co. and the date of organization, 1638, in black enamel letters. The pendant, or badge proper, is in the form of an elongated shield of polished gold, following the general shape of the centre of the Company's official seal, and bearing in its centre the raised figure of an ancient warrior in deadened gold. Protruding from the upper corners of the shield are the heads of two halberds, and at its top stand out in bold relief the mailed arm and sword of the crest of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The pin and pendant are connected by two three-link gold chains.

The entire badge is of 14-carat gold, and the committee recommend that the order be placed with the firm of Henry Guild & Son, of Boston, who will contract to manufacture them of equal quality as the sample at the rate of $10 each. The firm stipulates, however, that a first order of fifty badges be a part of the agreement.

The committee also recommends that due notice of the fact be given each individual member of the Company, and that the issue of badges be placed exclusively in the hands of the Paymaster (Vincent Laforme, 23 Water Street), believing that every badge should be procured through him, thus preventing promiscuous ordering from the manufacturers, and act at the same time as a safeguard from purchases by strangers and non-members of the Company. Each badge will be numbered, and the owner's name appear against it upon the Paymaster's book, acting to a certain extent as a safeguard against theft, and materially assisting in its recovery if lost.

When fifty members have signified to the Paymaster their intention to purchase a badge, the order will be placed with Messrs. Guild & Son for execution. The price includes a morocco case.

For the Committee,

J. P. FROST,
Chairman.

BOSTON, February 10, 1888.

I hereby subscribe for, and agree to pay for, one ticket (five dollars) for Dinner to be given at the QUINCY HOUSE, February 22, 1888, at 2 o'clock P.M., payable on demand to Geo. H. Allen.

To be sent by mail to Geo. H. Allen, P. O. box 1548, Boston, before February 20.

While the preceding pages state facts of a public nature there were others of a more private character connected with the visit of the delegation of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company to London in 1887 which show how successful in its results that visit was. In them I take great pride not only personally but also as a member of the Company, a Bostonian and a citizen of the United States.

That the visit should have made any considerable public impression is remarkable from the fact that at the time the Royalty of every country in Europe was represented in London joining in the celebration of the "Queen's Jubilee."

The seeming egotism of placing the facts hereinafter stated is justified by their being history, true in themselves and a part of the whole truth.

From its arrival in London until July 11th the day of the celebration by the Honorable Artillery Company of its 250th Anniversary the delegation received the most cordial welcome from individual members and the Committee of that organization, but on that date for the first time it was brought into contact with that Company as a whole. At the dinner of July 12th it was the special guest and I was called on to respond immediately after the toast to the "Army and Navy" receiving a long continued and most cordial welcome. The scene at the table was inspiring. Over four hundred of our hosts representing the oldest military organization in England and, with its guests, all ranks in life vied with each other in greeting their "kith and kin" from over the sea representing the oldest military organization in the New World.

As I ceased speaking all present went to their feet and a storm of applause gave enthusiastic approval to my words. Quiet being restored, the Duke of Portland, the presiding officer of the day said to me "Colonel its the finest thing I've heard"! Then turning to the audience he continued "Col Walker says he surrenders unconditionally. As Commander here I dictate terms to him, and order him to stay with us as long as he can and when he leaves us to come back as quickly as possible.

The first man to congratulate me after the Duke was Field Marshal Lord Napier of Magdala: then followed the Lord Mayor Sir Reginald Hanson, then the two sheriffs of London Sir Henry Isaacs and Sir Alfred Kirby who asked my brother for an introduction saying "we never hear such eloquence here.

Two short speeches followed my own and the dinner was over. I then held a levee shaking hands with most of those present. A member of the Press who said he had attended the meetings of the House of Commons for twenty years said to me "Colonel I've never been moved but by three speeches in my life, two by Gladstone and one by you tonight."

Sir John Monckton, I think it was, said to me "Colonel we not only admire the eloquence of your speech but we also like its manliness. You were an American all the way through yet you gave us all the credit which belongs to us."

On the day after the dinner as the delegation, in uniform was passing in front of St James Palace, Lieut. Potter overheard one Englishman say to another, pointing at me "Do you see that tall gentleman there." "Yes" was the response, "who is he" "That's the American Colonel whose speech is ringing through London today was the rejoinder.

Photographs of the delegation collectively and of myself singly were soon exhibited publicly the Manager of the Pall Mall Gallery issuing a new prospectus stating the fact.

On my arrival in Paris after leaving London I was introduced to a Mr Ranken a gentleman from New York City who said he did not need an introduction. he had heard of "that speech" in Geneva. some days before.

I state these facts as a part of the history of a mission of which I am proud to have had the good fortune to be at the head. and which did much toward forming and strengthening the friendship now existing between the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts and the Honorable Artillery Company of London. the Parent Company, and which must increase the mutual respect and regard each for the other, of the Communities the two organizations respectively represent

Mr. GEORGE AUGUSTUS SALA, in "Echoes of the Week," says:—

> "The process patented by M. Cellerier, and perfected and improved by Mr. E. W. Parkes, of Salters' Hall Court, City, succeeds to all appearances in producing tints and tones, carnations and textures, with an accuracy, a truth to nature, and a seizing of hue as well as form, which has never yet been obtained by other processes."

Col Walker.

Comrades and Friends, — This, your warm greeting to me, awakens within me emotions equally warm in return, and if I fail to express them it is for want of words for the purpose. In giving it, you gentlemen who are our guests give it to my company, every member of which, did time permit, would gladly acknowledge your courtesies for himself.

Following a custom lately becoming prevalent among literary institutions our company has brought with it an "annex," the wives and daughters of some of its members. They are not part of my command nor are they under my orders. They are supposed to obey husbands and fathers only, though those interested sometimes assert that the reverse is generally the case. However that may be, I think I may for this once speak for them and say that they, also, thank you for attentions paid to them.

It is but a few weeks since that I stood in London representing the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company at the celebration by its parent corps of its three hundred and fiftieth anniversary. It was a mother's whole-souled welcome I and those with me there received, one in which head and heart and hand were all combined. We are proud of our connection with the Honourable Artillery Company of London and believe that organization is equally glad of its relation ship to us.

Little did I think on that occasion that I should so soon stand in this, one of England's greatest colonies, with my whole command and find another welcome under her flag. I thanked you for it at your gates as we entered your city. I thank you for it now as we are about to leave it.

That we have enjoyed our visit it is needless for me to say. The faces about these tables speak more forcibly than can any words of mine our gratification at all we have here seen and heard. We have visited your churches, monuments of the devotion of heroic men and women whose deeds have given to the very stones tongues of fire to teach the lessons those deeds illustrated. We have trodden your marts of trade throbbing with that tireless activity which is doing so much for your prosperity. We have seen your institutions of learning and of charity, servants of the head, handmaidens of the heart. We have whirled along the rapids of your mighty river, fit emblems in their turbulence of more than a century of your past, and as they become a broad and quiet stream again a fit emblem of your peaceful, busy present. We have stood on your Royal Mount royal in its present beauty and its future capabilities. In all those things and more beside your city may well take pride and we rejoice with you in their possession.

Never before during the two centuries and a half of its existence has our company crossed the borders of its own land either in peace or war. It is meet that this, the oldest military organization on this continent, should make for its first foreign pilgrimage a visit to one of the pioneer cities of the New World.

Founded in 1638, our corps antedates by four years the settlement of Montreal, the birth night of which was May 18, 1642, when Maisoneuve pitched his tents on the very spot Champlain thirty-one years before had selected as a site for a settlement. Your city and our company, thus co-eval, has each from its birth done its share in the pioneer work which has opened up a continent to civilization, redeemed it from savage life and peopled it with millions of civilized men.

Canada and the English Colonies in America, settled by men of different religions and political faiths, stood antagonistic for more than a century and were forced by that very antagonism to push their conquests into a then unknown wilderness. From Quebec, from Plymouth, from Jamestown they pressed inland, the one endeavoring to shut the other within a narrow strip of land along the Atlantic coast by a cordon of forts stretching from the St. Lawrence to the Gulf of Mexico, the other striving to break through that cordon which, remaining intact, would have accomplished the desired purpose.

The Lily of France and the Cross of England struggled for a century and beneath them were performed acts of heroism for which the names of Wolfe and Montcalm, two knightly soldiers, equally brave and devoted, equally great in victory and in defeat, graven by chivalric hands on a monument in your sister city, may well stand as memorials. Of all the places on this continent the history of none teems with more facts which a romancer even would fear to state exactly lest he might be accused of exaggeration, than does that of this fair city.

When Maisoneuve landed on the banks of the St. Lawrence within the limits of what is now Montreal, he founded an outpost of civilization which he stood ready to defend with sword in hand and by his prayers. Compassed around by savage foes, threatened with destruction by nature itself as the river seemed ready to engulf his little settlement, he signalized his safety by planting the cross of his faith on yonder Mount, an act typical of that spirit no danger could appall, no fear shake, no suffering or hardship withstand. It penetrated the wilderness, it starved and froze in Indian cabins and wintry forests, it faced the horrors of savage war, it unflinchingly stood at the stake, keeping its aim in view and steadily marching toward it. That aim was to bring a continent under the cross of its church and beneath the banner of its native land. Differing from these early settlers in many respects as we may, we can but admire the manhood and womanhood which toiled and suffered, not only unmurmuringly but ever willingly for conscience' sake, in pursuit of a high ideal. Such qualities belong to no race or creed but to a common humanity, which in every clime and among every people may and must respect them.

An historian of my own country, of different race and creed from these men, has said: "The spirit of Godfrey de Bouillon lived again in Chomedy, Sieur de Maisoneuve, and in Marguerite Bourgeoys was realized that fair ideal of Christian womanhood, a flower of earth expanding in the rays of heaven, which soothed with gentle influence the wildness of a barbarous age."

"In the martial figure of Maisoneuve and the fair form of that gentle nun we find the true heroes of Montreal."

As one looks around and views the evidences of your prosperity, recognizes the advances your city has made in population and wealth, sees the fair women and brave men within its borders, he can but feel that the qualities of the soldier and the nun of 1642 have inspired the men and women who have since done their part in making this the Queen City of the Dominion.

To this spot, rich in historic recollections of two and a half centuries, comes the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company. It comes with arms in hand but on peaceful errand bent. Its members have enjoyed their stay here, and as they again seek their homes will carry with them pleasant memories which will quicken their heart-throbs when they shall see or hear or speak of Montreal.

I now call upon Adjt. Keeler, who will act as toast-master, to give the first toast.

Montreal Canada
Oct 1887.

Col H Walker

Mr. Beaugrand, Gentlemen of Montreal and Members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, — I called the Company to order to listen to this toast, because it was my duty so to do. I would gladly have been released from any further speaking, but the eloquent manner in which it was offered and the cordial way in which you received it demand an acknowledgment from me. To one and all I give my heartiest thanks. If I have done anything which redounds to the credit of this old organization, in which all belonging to it take so great pride, it is because of the generous support its members have given me. If from the performance of my duties as its Commander any pleasure has resulted to the people of Montreal, if I have satisfied my own comrades I am more than content. We of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company return to our homes gratified at our reception here and hoping that this year's visit may be oft repeated and returned in the future. We assure you, men of Montreal, that the road to our native city is an easy one to travel; that on it you cannot tell where by any imaginary State lines your and our good-will to each other begins or closes, but at our end of it you will find open hearts and hands to give you a warm welcome whenever you may see fit to journey to it. The kindly feelings you have expressed towards us are fully reciprocated, and, with you, we hope that the good-fellowship of to-night may never grow less. Again, for my Company and myself, I thank you men of Montreal and bid you good-night.

It has been suggested that before separating we all join in singing one verse of "Auld Lang Syne," immediately after which the members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company will report in the rotunda of the hotel ready to march.

The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts tenders to Your Royal Highness its warmest congratulations on the unqualified success of the celebration of the Jubilee Year of the reign of Her Majesty Queen Victoria.

With no untoward circumstances to mar the pleasure of the occasion, or to chill the generous loyalty of a great people, it has proved a fitting close to a half century of rule under which the prosperity of Her Empire has so largely increased.

To Your Royal Highness whose name, adds lustre to its roll of honorary membership the Company offers its most cordial good wishes that your future may be one of unclouded happiness and prosperity and in these wishes it includes Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales and other Members of the Royal Family.

The Company ~~and~~ as well as the Community of which it forms a part highly appreciates the courtesies* extended by you to its Commander and other Members who lately visited England to join with the Honorable Artillery Company of London in the celebration of its three hundred and fiftieth anniversary. courtesies* ~~They~~ will do much to maintain that harmony and good will between the two great English speaking nations which though separated by an ocean are bound together by the strongest ties of kinship and of interest.

May the name of Your Royal Highness, Heir to a great Empire, standing on the records of the Company beside that of a President of the United States, and that of your honored Father, the late Prince Consort, be emblematic of that peace with honor which all pray may ever exist between the two nations these names represent.

My dear Col.

Lieut. Taylor and myself have withdrawn our subscription for the anniversary fund— and I trust you will do the same— I am sorry you found fault with me for not speaking last night but, when the company sat upon the Commander after a personal plea, my small voice w'd have done but little good; we were defeated from the start— When I found out that Major Merrill's own Adjutant and Quartermaster went against him and the committee, I gave up in disgust.

ARMORY OF THE
ANCIENT AND HONORABLE ARTILLERY COMPANY OF MASS.,
FANEUIL HALL.

BOSTON, January 17, 1888.

Dear Sir:

As you are aware, the 250th Anniversary of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company takes place on the first Monday of June next. It should be made the most memorable event in the history of the company and of the city of Boston. The oldest military organization on the continent, — with but a few of a civil character antedating it, — with a roll of members unrivalled in its array of names of men whose labors and virtues in military and civil life have illustrated the history of our City, State and Nation, it stands a tie binding our present to our remotest past, and through its parent company to the past of our mother land.

It is expected that the State and the city, with whose history that of the company is so closely interwoven, will unite in making the celebration worthy of that history.

Under authority given by the company, invitations to be present will be sent to the President of the United States, members of the Cabinet, Generals Sheridan and Sherman, the Governors of the thirteen original States, and other distinguished men of our own country; also to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Captain-General and Colonel, the Duke of Portland, Lieutenant-Colonel, and Lord Colville of Culross, President of the Court of Assistants of the Honourable Artillery Company of London, and other officers.

On July 12, 1887, the Honourable Artillery Company of London celebrated its 350th anniversary. In recognition of the fact that one of its members was our founder and first commander, our company sent a delegation to London to join in that celebration, which was received and entertained in the most hospitable manner. Our commander, under a vote of our company, tendered to the Honourable Artillery Company a cordial invitation to join with us in our coming celebration. That invitation was accepted, and a committee headed by the Lieutenant-Colonel, the Duke of Portland, has been appointed to make necessary arrangements. There will be a large number of the members of our parent company present on that occasion.

It is also proposed to erect a memorial to the memory of Captain Keayne, and steps have been taken by the company for that purpose.

It is most desirable that the good name of our company, so noted for its independent generosity, and of Boston, so well known for its hospitality, shall not, on that occasion, suffer any detriment, but shall be kept up to the high standard they have long maintained.

To carry out the celebration as proposed will necessitate a large expense. The company will undoubtedly, as early as possible under its By-Laws, make some provision out of its general funds, but the greater portion of the money required must come from an assessment and from contribution.

It has therefore been decided to ask for subscriptions to a fund, to be used as circumstances may require for the purposes of the coming celebration.

As a member of the company, proud of its past history and interested in its welfare, you are requested to return as early as possible the enclosed agreement, filled in with the amount you are pleased to subscribe, as therein stated.

ARMORY

ANCIENT AND HONORABLE ARTILLERY COMPANY

OF MASSACHUSETTS.

FANEUIL HALL, BOSTON, Jan. 24, 1888.

DEAR SIR:

The Committee on the 250th Anniversary having called on the members of the Company for a subscription to aid in meeting the expenses of the celebration, so as to render the spring assessment so moderate that all may join therein, and having already received a generous response thereto, — about two thousand dollars having been pledged, — deem it proper that the details of the celebration, as voted by the Company, should be fully made known to the individual members. In arranging the details the Committee has acted in accordance with the vote of the Company, and present the following as the programme substantially as laid down.

The Committee has been divided into subcommittees, as follows: —

SUBSCRIPTIONS - - - - - -	Messrs. Shuman, Savage and Hedges.
TRANSPORTATION - - - - - -	Messrs. Folsom, Smith and Cundy.
HOTELS - - - - - - - -	Messrs. Hitchborn, Fottler and Stevens.
PRINTING - - - - - - -	Messrs. Merrill, Frost and Rockwell.
INVITATIONS - - - - - - -	Messrs. Walker, Keeler and Allen.

The members of the Honourable Artillery Company of London will arrive in New York on or about May 26th next, and there will be met by a delegation of the Committee. From thence they will go to Washington, where they will pay their respects to the President of the United States, and visit Mt. Vernon and the National Cemetery at Arlington.

Leaving Washington, they will return to New York, visiting Gettysburg, the greatest battle-field of the world, on the way. From New York they will be carried up the Hudson as far as West Point, returning to New York on the same day, and from thence proceed to Boston via Fall River, arriving here on Saturday, June 2d.

On Saturday evening there will be a grand military reception at the Vendome, in which the whole Company will join.

For Sunday, June 3, no special plan has been made, it being deemed best to allow all guests of the Company to spend the day as they may wish.

On Monday, June 4th, will be celebrated the 250th Anniversary, according to the usual method of carrying out our Spring Parade. This celebration of our Anniversary will in all probability be the grandest demonstration ever made by the Company, the details of which will be carried out under the direction of the Committee regularly chosen by the Company for that purpose.

On Tuesday, June 5th, there will be a harbor excursion in which the whole Company will join. On Wednesday, June 6th, a visit will be made to Plymouth, in which the whole Company will take part. On Thursday, June 7th, Lowell or Lawrence will be visited, the whole Company joining in the trip. On Friday and Saturday other excursions, not yet fully decided on, but of a similar character, will be made.

Hospitalities have also been tendered to the delegation and the Company by private individuals and clubs.

The above programme has been made known to the Honourable Artillery Company, and advices have been received that at least twenty-five members of that organization will be present with us at our coming celebration.

The Committee urge upon the members of the Company who have not already responded to its circular asking for subscriptions to reply thereto at once.

To the Members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery:

At the meeting of the Company, Monday, Feb. 6, one of the largest meetings ever held, it was unanimously voted to carry out the programme of the 250th Anniversary Committee as submitted, and the Committee has received assurances from members present of their hearty and substantial support. The historical record of the corps is against going outside of its ranks for assistance, as it has been its time-honored custom to entertain rather than be entertained.

No doubt the balance of the members intend to subscribe, but as the Committee is composed of business men who cannot afford to give the time for personal solicitation, more than is necessary, they make this final appeal by circular, and thus call the attention of every member who has not already done so to send in his subscription in accordance with his ability, and so enable the Committee to know in time what means there will be at their command to carry out the great celebration of the 250th Anniversary consistent with the honor and dignity of the Company, and to the satisfaction of the members.

Members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company are hereby notified that a special meeting of the Company will be held at the Armory on Monday evening, March 12th inst., at 8 o'clock, for the following purposes, to wit:

ARMORY

Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company

OF MASSACHUSETTS.

FANEUIL HALL,
BOSTON, March 5, 1888.

GENERAL ORDERS
No. 5. 15/3

1. Members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company are hereby reminded that the celebration of its 250th Anniversary will prove one of the most noteworthy events in its history. It will bring together, as guests, representatives of military organizations of our own and other countries, besides many men most distinguished in military and civil life. It therefore behooves the Company, for its own honor, to make a creditable appearance. This can be done only by work on the part of individual members, and such work should be cheerfully performed.

2. Attention is called to the fact that in time past many of the members most earnest in attending drill meetings have been those who, from experience in active service and in the militia, least required instruction or practice. The reverse of this should be true. Ignorance of or inefficiency in performing his duties on the part of a single member of a company can mar its appearance. The Commander would therefore impress upon members who have had little or no experience as soldiers, that their own good name and that of the Company demand exertion on their part to familiarize themselves with their military duties. Especially is it incumbent on company commanders and guides to fit themselves for their respective positions. Upon a company's guides largely depend the accuracy and steadiness of its movements, and no one should hold such office who does not perfect himself in its duties.

3. It is therefore ordered that meetings of the Company for drill will be held at the Armory on Fridays, March 16, 30; April 13, 27; May 11, 25; June 1.

4. Commanders of companies and guides will report to the Adjutant for instruction at the headquarters of the 1st Battalion of Cavalry, No. 6 Ashburton Place, Boston, on the following named dates, at 8 o'clock P. M.: Fridays, March 23; April 6, 20; May 4, 18.

5. It is proposed to have Faneuil Hall opened for the Company drills.

6. No further notification of the above-named meetings will be made other than by notices in the Boston Globe and Boston Herald of the dates mentioned.

7. The attention of members is also called to the necessity for all intending to join in the coming spring parade to obtain uniforms. The uniform of the artillery wing must be as prescribed in Art. III., Sect. 4, of the Rules and Regulations of the Company, as follows:—

> SECT. 4. The uniform of that portion of the Company designated as artillery shall be a dark blue cloth coat; style, full dress United States Navy, 1849; two rows of gilt A. & H. A. Co. buttons in front (seven in each row), two buttons at waist (back), two buttons at bottom of skirt, two rows of red piping cord around collar, and at ends (front) of collar a mounted cannon embroidered in gold and silver, one row of red piping around sleeve, three inches from end, and three small Company buttons. Pants, same cloth as coat. Red piping one eighth inch in size down outside seam, white gloves, and a chapeau bearing the insignia of the Company, and a red plume.

Other uniforms may be worn as prescribed in Sect. 4 of said Art. III., as follows:—

> SECT. 3. Members who are or have been connected with other military organizations may at all parades wear their respective uniforms, and no member shall wear any insignia of office to which he is not entitled by virtue of a commission or warrant, in that portion of the Company designated as infantry.

These rules must be adhered to in every particular. Members are especially reminded that the full-dress hat or helmet pertaining to the uniform worn can alone be allowed in the ranks.

A question has arisen on several occasions as to the right of members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company to wear on parade insignia of rank conferred on them in certain "veteran" organizations. In answer to a previous letter I had laid down the rule that they could wear only such insignia of rank as had been authorized by the proper military authority of any State or of the United States. The following letters closed the correspondence.

Boston Mch. 28th 1884.

Dear Sir

~~"Logically the whole outfit should stand or fall together"~~. The A & H. A. Co.× differs from the "veteran" organizations in this — It is chartered as a "military Company"; its officers are expressly named as military officers in its charter and are commissioned personally by the Governor of the State, the Commander in chief; it is recognized in the Statutes as a "military" organization.

The veteran organizations as a rule, are chartered as corporations subject to the general corporation laws of the State, with the privilege of parading with side arms — their officers, with the titles and insignia worn by them, are the creation of the organizations themselves with no sanction from the proper military authority of the State.

Dear Sir,

I thank you for your courteous reply to my enquiry, and have to acknowledge the copy of Gen. [illegible] opinion on the subject coinciding with your own. The decisions seem based on sound military principles and in any other organization than our own could not be questioned. A natural query arises however, considering the U. V. L. as military organizations, whether their uniforms being peculiar to themselves, and not conforming either to the State or U.S. standards could not be objected to as regarding as their insignia of rank, and whether the whole subject should not stand or fall together.

[Introduced on leave by Senator GLINES of Middlesex.]

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

In the Year One Thousand Eight Hundred and Eighty-eight.

RESOLVE

Making an Appropriation for the Firing of a Salute on the Occasion of the Two Hundred and Fiftieth Anniversary of the Organization of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company.

Resolved, That the sum of four hundred dollars is hereby allowed for the purpose of firing a salute on the occasion of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the organization of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, and the same is hereby appropriated.

Approved.
May 17th 1888.

A portion of the equipments of the Company having become useless from long wear and the rifles used by it being of an obsolete pattern, application was made by Commander Walker to the State of Massachusetts for a supply of modern arms and equipments. The application failed, the State not having any on hand. A similar request was then made to the Hon. William C. Endicott, Secretary of War of the United States, who, though willing to grant it, was powerless to do so under the law.

An order was then introduced into the House of Representatives at Washington authorizing the Secretary of War to comply with the request. It passed both houses of Congress and was signed by the President, May 28, 1888.

As the time prior to the celebration was then too brief for the provisions of the order to be properly carried out the Company purchased the equipments needed, which, worn at the following parade, added much to its soldierly appearance.

The action of the President and Congress of the United States paralleled the recognition of the Company as a military body by the National Government in 1792, when it was exempted from the provisions of the National Militia Law then passed.

Company drills will be held at the Armory on every Friday evening until the spring parade, instead of on every other Friday evening as heretofore ordered. Drills will commence promptly at 8 o'clock.

The Commander congratulates the company on the increased interest exhibited by the members in attending drill meetings. The fact, however, is still apparent that those needing instruction are far less prompt and steady in their attendance than those not requiring it. Especially is this the case with the artillery wing of the Company, which, it must be remembered, requires as much knowledge of company movements as does the infantry wing. Moreover, the proper use of the sabre is as needful as the proper handling of the rifle to insure a creditable appearance of the Company on parade. The Commander therefore earnestly desires that every member intending to march in the ranks at the coming celebration should be present at each of the remaining drills.

The resolutions were as follows: —

At a meeting of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts, U. S. A., held at its armory in Faneuil Hall, Boston, on Sept. 30, A. D. 1887, it was unanimously

Resolved, That the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts has learned with unfeigned pleasure of the kind reception and generous hospitality extended to its Commander and his associates by Captain-General and Colonel, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the Lieutenant-Colonel, His Grace the Duke of Portland, the officers and members of the Honourable Artillery Company of London, at the celebration of their three hundred and fiftieth anniversary, and rejoices in the friendly relations existing between the two companies as a bond of brotherhood, uniting not only them but also the nations they represent.

Resolved, That for the courtesies thus shown to its Commander and other members this company tenders its warmest thanks to the parent company, and its earnest wishes that the cordial feeling of kinship now animating the two organizations may continue and increase.

HENRY WALKER (COLONEL),
Captain commanding the Ancient and Honorable

The resolutions were handsomely engrossed on parchment, and placed in a heavy carved oaken frame. On the centre of the upper side of the frame was a large spread eagle. At each of the upper corners were two cannon crossed, and at the lower corners were crossed muskets, espontoons and halberds, all the ornamentation being carved out of oak.

ARMORY OF THE

ANCIENT AND HONORABLE ARTILLERY COMPANY

OF MASSACHUSETTS,

FANEUIL HALL.

BOSTON, April 28, 1888.

At a meeting of the Company on Monday last, April 23, it was unanimously voted, amid great enthusiasm, to invite the Old Guard of New York to participate in the celebration of the 250th Anniversary of the Company.

It is the intention to have the Old Guard present at the reception at Music Hall, on Saturday, June 2, as well as at the Anniversary celebration, June 4. This, of course, will increase the expense of general entertainment from one to two thousand dollars.

The Committee has been assured by many members of an increased subscription simultaneous with the invitation to the Old Guard.

If not already a subscriber, will you kindly favor the Committee with your subscription, and, by so doing, oblige

Colonel Henry Walker,
Commanding Ancient and Honorable Company,
Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir:-

I have received your letter of the 5th instant, extending to me an invitation to accompany the Anniversary Committee, on its visit to Gettysburg, with the delegation of the Honorable Artillery Company of London, which I accept with pleasure.

I have hesitated somewhat in regard to my reply, for various reasons, but your cordiality and the complimentary manner in which you have given the invitation makes it a duty as well as a pleasure to comply with your request.

I fear you will be disappointed in my knowledge of the events that occurred on that immortal field, although I had an unusual opportunity of seeing and knowing much that occurred during the battle, but the personal scope of any individual must of necessity be very limited on a battle-field covering an area of more than twenty square miles.

I would suggest, if the Committee has not already considered the subject, that an invitation be extended to the Government Historian Colonel Jno. B. Batchelder, to accompany the deligation.

Trusting that the excursion will prove pleasant and profitable to all who have the pleasure of participating in its benefits,

I remain, Sincerely Yours,

A. P. Martin,

Note. The Commander by vote of the Company was authorised invite two members of the Company to go with him & the Committee
Washington & Gettysburg - He accordingly invited Br Gen A P Martin and Br Gen S H Leonard both of whom were in the battle at Gettysburg HW

GENERAL ORDERS
No. ~~8.~~ 9 15

In accordance with Article V., Paragraph I., of its Rules and Regulations, this Company will parade on Monday, June 4 next.

I. The Commissioned and Honorary Staff, in full uniform and white gloves, will report to the Commanding Officer in the Library of the Armory at 8.15 A. M.

II. The Non-commissioned Staff, Right and Left General Guides, Color-bearers and Markers, in full uniform and white gloves, will report to the Adjutant, at the Armory, at 8.15 A. M.

III. The Bands, in full uniform, will report to the Adjutant at the same time and place.

IV. The members of the Company, other than those specified in Paragraphs I., II. and III., will report at the Armory, in full uniform and white gloves, at 7.30 A. M. Officers' belts will not be worn by members carrying rifles. Members of the Infantry wing will be supplied with black belts and cartridge-boxes by the Quartermaster.

V. Battalion line will be formed on South Market Street promptly at 8.45 A. M., previous to which, at 8.15 sharp, the companies will be formed (those of the Infantry wing in the Armory and those of the Artillery wing in the hallway of the Produce Exchange), based upon the formation of twelve files front, exclusive of Guides, and no changes in or additions to any Company will be allowed after it has been formed and reported to the Adjutant.

VI. Sergeants of Companies will exercise promptness in their formation, and see that their rosters are clearly and properly made out upon the blanks which will be furnished by the Adjutant, and which must be delivered to him previous to 8.40 A. M. Only names of those members actually present and who participate in the parade will be placed upon the roll.

VII. The by-law as to uniforms reads:—

> SECT. 3. Members who are or have been connected with other military organizations may at all parades wear their respective uniforms, and no member shall wear any insignia of office to which he is not entitled by virtue of a commission or warrant, in that portion of the Company designated as Infantry.

In answer to inquiries, the following decision is rendered: Under this by-law no insignia of office can be worn by any member in the Infantry wing, except such as properly represents some "commission or warrant" issued by the President, or by authority of Congress, or by the military authority of some State or Territory duly authorized by law to issue such "commission or warrant." The same rule applies to members parading in the Artillery wing of the Company, though for them a special uniform is prescribed.

The A. & H. A. Company is not a veteran organization, but a "military" company. It was chartered as "the military company of ~~the~~ Massachusetts," with officers, to whom were given, by the charter, military rank and titles, and who are commissioned by "the Governor and Commander-in-Chief" in a most formal manner. It has been and is recognized as a "military" company by the statutes of the Commonwealth.

The veteran organizations are chartered as corporations, chiefly for charitable purposes, subject to the general corporation laws of the State, with the privilege of parading with side arms. Their officers, with the titles and insignia worn by them, are the creation of such organizations themselves, with no sanction from the proper military authority of the Commonwealth.

VIII. The H. A. C. delegation from England will be placed in the column in the rear of the Governors and their staffs, and preceding the Artillery wing of this command.

Capt. A. A. Folsom will take charge of H. A. C. delegation.

The other invited guests will be placed between the Artillery wing and the Old Guard of New York.

IX. The following detail is announced for Saturday, June 2, viz.: Capt. Samuel Hichborn and Lieut. J. Henry Taylor, who will report, in full dress, to the Adjutant, at Old Colony Railway Station, at 8.45 A. M.

X. The following details are announced for Monday, June 4, as Flankers to Honourable Artillery delegation:—

Major Jas. F. Jackson. Capt. N. A. Thompson. Lieut. J. Henry Taylor. Lieut. J. Allston Newhall.
J. Franklin Shaw. Thos. J. Olys. Westley Jones. John R. Newman.

This detail will report to Col. Austin C Wellington, at 8.15 A. M., at Armory.

XI. For duty at the church:—

Lieut. T. L. Churchill. Lieut. Eugene H. Richards. Lieut. D. F. Farrar. Sergt. D. F. Hall.
Edward Coggins. Wm. H. Parmenter. F. A. Walker. John C. Dalton.

Who will report at the church at 9 A. M., to Sergt. D. F. Hall. The same detail is announced for duty in the Common enclosure.

XII. Col. Fred W. Wellington will take charge of invited military guests in column, as specified in last part of Paragraph VIII.

XIII. As flankers to the Commander-in-Chief, Lieuts. Wm. P. Jones and Wm. H. Jones.

XIV. Sergt. H. F. Wade and Sergt. Edwin Warner are hereby detailed as markers.

XV. Gen. Samuel C. Lawrence is hereby detailed as personal escort to his Excellency the Governor, and will report to the Commanding Officer for instructions.

Major Chas. G. Davis and Lieut. Jacob Pfaff will report at State House at 8.45, to Gen. Lawrence.

XVI. So much of General Orders No. 1, current series, as applies to the appointment of J. Henry Taylor as Left General Guide, is hereby rescinded. Lieut. E. B. Wadsworth is hereby appointed Left General Guide, vice Taylor, relieved.

XVII. Members of the Company are expected to retain their places in line on the Common during the election of officers.

Proper respect must be paid to the speakers and our invited guests at the dinner. This can only be done by the earnest efforts of each individual member to preserve silence during the speaking.

After the morning ceremonies, the command will remain in Produce Exchange Building until dinner is served. Lieuts. Frost and Fottler will see this order enforced in their respective wings.

This paragraph refers to members of the command who do not parade, as well as to those who do. The Commander will not permit the stairways and corridors of Faneuil Hall to be blocked before the order is given to enter the building.

FANEUIL HALL, BOSTON, June 1, 1888.

To the Members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company:

GENTLEMEN, — The Celebration of the 250th Anniversary of the Charter of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts will be extended over a period of several days, commencing with a grand reception at the MUSIC HALL, on SATURDAY, JUNE 2. This reception is expected to be the most brilliant affair of the kind ever given in this city. In addition to the members of the Company who will be present, invitations have been extended to his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, Governor Ames, and his Staff; all the Commissioned Officers of the Massachusetts Militia; all Officers of the United States Army on duty within the State; the Old Guard of New York; the delegation of the Honourable Artillery Company; and representatives of the First Light Infantry Regiment of Providence; Newport Artillery Company, of Newport, Rhode Island; the Governor's Foot Guard and Putnam Phalanx, of Hartford, Conn.; Amoskeag Veterans, of Manchester, N. H.; Philadelphia City Troop; Richmond Blues, of Richmond, Va.; Albany Burgesses Corps; Troy Citizens' Corps, N. Y.; and many others.

His Honor the Mayor of Boston, the Board of Aldermen, and a large number of people prominent in civil life, will be present.

Ladies will occupy the balconies, but will not be admitted to the floor of the hall.

This will be a full dress affair, and the scene in the hall, which will be handsomely decorated, will present an appearance never to be forgotten by those who are so fortunate as to be present.

SUNDAY, JUNE 3.

The visiting military guests of the Company will attend church as their individual inclinations may determine, and in the afternoon will be taken to ride in the suburbs of the city, in an informal way, by members of the Company.

MONDAY, JUNE 4.

The day will be celebrated as has been customary with the Company, escorting his Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Massachusetts, Governor Oliver Ames, and Staff, to the New Old South Church, and thence to Faneuil Hall, where the dinner will be served at one o'clock, after which the Company will proceed to the Common, where the usual election and commissioning of the officers will take place.

During the day a salute of two hundred and fifty guns will be fired by the State of Massachusetts in honor of the occasion.

The return of the command to the Armory, under its newly elected officers, will close the ceremonies of the day.

TUESDAY, JUNE 5.

The celebration will be continued under the command of the newly elected officers of the Company.

The city of Boston has extended an invitation to the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company and its military guests to an excursion in the harbor; and it is expected that all members of the Company will appear in full dress uniform, as tickets will not be issued, and the uniform will be the pass which will be recognized by the City Committee for admission to the boat. The Company will assemble at the Armory at 8.45 A. M., and line will be formed at 9.15 A. M., and, escorting his Honor the Mayor, the City Committee, and the Old Guard of New York, will proceed at once to the boat.

Tuesday evening, his Excellency the Governor will hold a reception at his residence in this city, to which the representatives of the Honourable Artillery Company of London, and the officers of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company are invited, to meet the Commissioned Officers of the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 6.

The uniformed members of the Company will assemble at 8 A. M., and, by invitation of the City of Lowell, will visit that city. The Company will leave the train at Tyngsboro', and proceed to Tyng's Island, where they will be the guests of the Martyn Luther Club of Lowell; thence a sail on the beautiful waters of the Merrimac River to the city, where they will be due about twelve o'clock. Here, after a short march, escorted by the local companies and the Second Corps of Cadets, the Company will be entertained at Huntington Hall by the City Government and a committee of sixty-five citizens of Lowell. The return to Boston will be at about six o'clock.

The evening will be occupied in attending a reception at the Central Club, complimentary to the delegation of the Honourable Artillery Company of London.

This will end the celebration so far as parades of the Company are concerned, and it is hoped that the Tuesday and Wednesday celebrations will be fully attended by the Company in full dress uniform, in conformity with the invitations extended by the committees of the City Governments of Boston and Lowell.

THURSDAY, JUNE 7.

The day will be devoted by the Officers and Committee of the Company to the entertainment of military guests remaining in the city, by riding and visiting various places of interest in and about the city.

An invitation has been extended by the Waltham Watch Company to Officers and Committee of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company and its guests to visit their works.

In the evening, Columbian Lodge of Masons, W. M. A. A. Hall, have extended an invitation to the delegation from the Honourable Artillery Company of London to visit them in Masonic Temple.

To members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, not members of Columbian Lodge, invitations will be extended if they will send to Lieut. William P. Jones, 93 Water Street, Boston, name, address, and Lodge of which they are members.

FRIDAY, JUNE 8.

The delegation from the Honourable Artillery Company, with the Officers and Committee of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, will be the guests of the First Light Infantry Regiment of Providence, R. I., and after marching through some of the principal streets of that city, will take steamer for Rocky Point, where a shore dinner will be partaken of. The London delegation, with the Officers and Committee, will return to Boston by late train, and, subsequently, members of the Honourable Artillery Company will be the guests of the First Worshipful Masters' Association in Massachusetts.

The unbounded liberality of subscription by members of the Company should be supplemented by a full attendance of members in uniform, not only on the Anniversary day, but on Tuesday and Wednesday, that our celebration may close as brilliantly as it will commence, and that the newly commissioned officers may feel proud that, under them, the parades were a credit to the Company, and be an encouragement to them in the arduous duties of the occasion.

This is not an official communication, but has been prepared in the absence of the Committee, from the best knowledge obtainable, in conformity with the desire of the Company expressed at its last meeting.
